PRICE THREE CENTS

OUR OPERA HOUSE

Mr. Lewis' Undertaking Has Proven a Success

FINE PICTURES HIS MOTTO

That Mr. J. E. Lewis, proprietor and manager of our town's playhouse, has handsomely succeeded in his amusement enterprises, the mathematics of his box office receipts after a whole year's operation, conclusively prove to himself, and the impressive spectacle of autos and other vehicles nightly ranged along either curb, not only on Main, but also often on other streets, as certainly proves that fact to the general public.

Yes, Mr. Lewis has succeeded big and that too, right in the teeth of pessimistic prophecies of failure, by not a few, and what is more, he has not a doubt that success by a fine exhibition of courage and initiative in making the heavy investment of his money in the elegant structure which replaces the old Town Hall, and also by presenting first-class plays, shown by two costly modern machines on a high priced screen of the best and latest design known to the scenic art.

From his station as an inexperienced beginner, Mr. Lewis has blossomed out almost overnight into a skillful manager and impresario, who knows what his patrons want and how to give it to them. The Transcript feels that this tribute is due him not only in recognition of his creditable success, but also because he is one of its best advertisers.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday evenings he gave that fine creation, "The Soul of Youth," by Julia Crawford Ives.

It is a superb picture of real boy life, provocative of the smiles caught from off the boy's own smiling face, full of interest and possessing, withal, a pathos that grips hard the sympathies of all who see it.

The story's hero is a poor neglected "filius nullius," "son of nobody," as the old law books euphemistically say, such, the boy Ed., who after suffering the cuffs and rebuffs of 13 miserable, loveless years in a "Home," which was a copy of the "Dotheboys Hall," as pictured in Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby," runs away because, poor lad, hungering for something to love, and to love him in return, he was not allowed to adopt a homeless cur which he had rescued from his gamin tormentors.

He earns a scanty living for himself and his dog "Bimp," as a bootblack, chumming it with a newsie pal in an old packing box in a vacant cellar.

A theft of food brings him before that famous humanitarian, Judge Ben Lindsey, whose tender salvage of delinquent juveniles has revolutionized the court treatment of children not only in all America, but likewise throughout the world. That noble, tenderhearted judge himself is shown in the play, he wisely believing that thus he could most widely spread his beneficent gospel of saving neglected, and consequently errant, childhood.

Lewis Sargent, a boy with an infectious smile, who plays the role of Ed., gives a charming exhibition of real boy nature and life as natural as the thing itself. He is famous for impersonating "Huckleberry Finn" in Mark Twain's immortal boy classic. One could wish every representation upon the movie stage were as wholesomely clean and inspiring as this superb movie "The Soul of Youth." The whole town and all the country dwellers should see this truly great piece of Moving Picture representation. Why not give it again? All who once saw it would gladly see it once more.

Go to the movies next Tuesday evening. See a good movie and get the election returns.

Students Making Good Carpenters

The agricultural class at Delmar moved into new quarters this year. When moving was done, just before school opened, there were no tables available and it was necessary to have them in order to have something upon which to work.

The class was not to be held up and the boys decided to make the tables under the guidance of the instructor and as part of the farm shop work.

Three strong tables, thirty inches wide and twelve feet long, were built very efficiently for the cuts are square, the joints snug, unions tight and surfacing smoothly done. The tables are, not only excellent in appearance, but they are also strong enough to stand hard wear and at the same time, light enough to be easily handled and moved. Then they were stained and varnished.

All of this work was done by the boys in the department of vocational agriculture and much credit is due these young men for their enthusiasm and efficiency in handling tools.

Preparations Under Way

"Extensive preparations are under way for the second annual meeting of the Delaware State Teachers' Association, which will be held at Dover, early in November. Educators of national reputation are being secured as speakers. Topics of interest will be discussed at round table gatherings. Everything is being done to make this meeting of the teachers a great educational event."

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, October 31st, 1920. The 22d Sunday after Trinity.

Services: 10:30. Morning prayer and sermon.

11:45. Sunday School.

7:30. Evening prayer and address.

Nov. 1st, All Saints' Day. Service in the church, Holy Communion at ten thirty.

"Here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus." Rev. XVI:12.

The design of the church in appointing this festival is chiefly to honor God in the holy example of His saints, and also to encourage us who remain yet upon the battle-ground, to fight the same "good fight of faith." As the church cannot assign a special day for every saint and martyr, she here includes them all in one common commemoration. All Saint's Day possesses a charm that is all its own. It is the great day on which we are invited to remember our loved dead and to thank God for the good examples of all those, who, having finished their course, do now rest from their labors. As we advance along life's pathway and friends whom we knew and loved in the flesh enter into the spirit world, we think more than ever of the Church Expectant of which they form a part. All Saints' day is the appeal to the entire human race. Let us keep the day as the church would have us and as our hearts suggest.

Let us have a good attendance at the Communion on All Saints' Day.

"And then for those, our dearest and our best."

By this prevailing presence we appeal; Oh, fold them close to Thy mercy's breast!

Oh, do Thine utmost for their soul's From tainting mischief keep them white and clear.

And crown Thy gifts with strength to persevere."

Admires Delaware Roads

Charles M. Upham, chief engineer of the Delaware State Highway Commission, together with about twenty-four New Jersey highway engineers, began a tour of Delaware roads last week to view the highways being constructed.

The visitors were entertained at the Hotel duPont at luncheon in the duPont room, and had the system of state highways explained to them by Mr. Upham and Joseph Warvel, a member of the commission, made a brief address as also did Chief Engineer Wassner of New Jersey, and Alexander Nelson, County Engineer of Atlantic County, members of the County Highway Engineers' Association. Mr. Wassner said the New Jersey road building budget for 1921 called for an appropriation of $18,000,000 to cover operations for the next six years. Next year $4,700,000 will be expended. The party made a tour of the roads about Wilmington, then went down the State.

Many of the visitors expressed admiration at the progress that had been made in Delaware during the four and a half years the work of the State Highway Department had been in operation.

EX-SERVICE MEN

Delaware's candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor on the Republican ticket, are, in the speech of the "doughboys," both ex-service men, and both served throughout the war with distinction and credit to themselves and their state.

Col. William D. Denney, the nominee for governor, is an active and successful business man. For years before the world War he had been more or less conversant with the gold braid and tinsel side of military affairs, for he had served as Colonel on the military staff of four different governors. When the first officers' training camp opened at Plattsburg and the government called for volunteers Col. Denney was one of the first to enter his name and promptly doffed his colonel's uniform to don the khaki of a private and undergo the course of training.

When the United States entered the war Governor Townsend offered Col. Denney a commission in the Delaware regiment, which afterwards became the 59th Pioneers. Col. Denney, however, did not feel that he had had enough experience to accept, and instead he presented himself at Fort Myer, Va., and enlisted as a private. Had he waited a few months he would have been too old to have been accepted, but the enlistment officers gladly enrolled him. His education, bearing and executive ability soon won him a commission, but on examination for service in France he was rejected for overseas service because of a slight physical imperfection.

He was so valuable a man, however, that he was transferred to Camp Lee, Va., where he was put in charge of training officers for overseas service and promoted to captain. So the commission he might easily have had through the favor of Governor Townsend won for himself by actual service and merit.

Major Bush also attended the Plattsburg Training Camp in 1915 and in the same year he enlisted as a private in the First Delaware Infantry.

He served with that unit on the Mexican border from June 1916 to February 1917, when it was mustered out of federal service. In a few weeks he was recalled to serve in the World War.

One year of his service in this war was in France with the 59th Pioneers (the Delaware unit). While overseas he was successively promoted until he reached the rank of major, which he held when mustered out July 1919, after four years of active service.

He is the head of J. D. Bush and Company manufacturers and wholesalers of lumber.

MORE INTEREST IN SCHOOLS

Addressing members of the New Castle County Teachers' Association at their quarterly conference held in Wolf Hall, Delaware College, Saturday, Dr. R. W. Cooper of the Service Citizens pointed out the interest being manifested by residents of Delaware in educational matters especially in those matters pertaining to school attendance. The work of the attendance officers was shown to be noteworthy, the attendance he stated in 1918-19 was 98 days on the average whereas in 1919-20 it was 118 days on an average. Another way of showing the average attendance, explained by Dr. Cooper showed the attendance in 1918-19 to be 12,000 pupils in all schools whereas in 1919-20 it was 16,000 an increase of 4,000. The conference opened with an address by W. H. Jump, county superintendent who spoke of the agencies that assist the teachers, Service Citizens, the Health units of the State Board of Education, and the State and County Boards, the State Board of Charities, and the Parent Teachers' Associations. Addresses were made by Prof. W. A. Wilkinson, Miss Ina Barnes, Miss Ruby Miller, A. R. Spaid, Miss Ruth Jones, Dr. G. S. Oinsup and others. At the close of the meeting the election of officers of the Teachers' Association was held, those elected being: President, Warren K. Yerger, superintendent of the DuPont Special school district; vice-president, Mrs. Mary E. Rich, of the Women's College and Secretary and Treasurer, O. E. McKnight, of Middletown.

LEAPS INTO NIAGARA FALLS.

Amazed Spectators See Man Go To His Death.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—Before the eyes of a score of sightseers at Prospect Point a man climbed over the railing, waded out into the river and was carried over the American falls. Too astounded to act the spectators stood by while the man drifted to the brink, waving his hand and shouting: "Here's where I leave you; good-bye."

In a black derby found near the place, where the man climbed the railway, was found a piece of paper on which was written: "This hat belongs to Carl A. Ellis, of Hamburg, N. Y."

The description of the suicide corresponds to that of Ellis, who could not be located in Hamburg.

The owner of a souvenir stand near the falls told the police that the man approached him and laughingly said: "Well, I can't vote for Harding, so I may as well go over the falls."

The souvenir seller thought the man was joking and paid no more attention to the incident until a short time later when he saw the fatal leap.

QUARANTINE FOR AIRPLANES.

Same Regulations As Apply To Ships Will Be Enforced.

Washington.—Airplanes entering the United States from foreign countries will be subject, after November 1, to the same quarantine regulations as apply to steamers coming from foreign ports, it was stated at the Public Health Service.

The first airplane health inspector will be at Key West, Fla., where many planes arrive from Cuba. The airships must obtain bills of health from the American Consul at Havana before leaving that city.

WOMAN FOUND MURDERED.

Body Discovered in Clump Of Trees On Staten Island.

New York.—The body of an unidentified woman with a piece of manila string wound and tied about the neck was found by hunters in a clump of trees near West New Brighton, Staten Island.

The trampled condition of the ground and marks upon the face and hands indicated that the woman had been killed after a struggle. Her hat was found several feet away and pearls from a broken necklace were scattered about. She was apparently about 30 years old.

PLANS FOR 31 SHIPS APPROVED.

Thirty Passed By Ship Board Are To Be Tankers.

Washington.—Approval was announced by the Shipping Board of the construction of 31 vessels, aggregating 350,000 dead-weight tons, under the provisions of the Merchant Marine act, which exempts ship owners from payment of the excess profits tax if an amount equal to the tax is devoted to shipbuilding.

Thirty of the new vessels are to be tankers and one a five-mast wooden schooner. Of the tankers, 14 are being built for the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and 10 for the Standard Transportation Company of New York.

LOWER POSTAL RATE FAVORED.

Bureau Will Recommend One-Cent For Local Delivery.

Washington.—Postmaster-General Burellson said, will not recommend any increase in the two-cent first class letter rate, in connection with any plan of taxation revision, and will renew the department's previous recommendations for a one-cent local delivery rate.

The Postmaster-General estimates that a reduction of the local delivery rate would probably increase postal revenue rather than decrease it.

FLOUR DROPS $1 A BARREL.

Quotation Of $10.85 Reached At Minneapolis Mill.

Minneapolis.—Reflecting the break in the wheat market flour dropped as much as $1 a barrel at local mills. At the largest mill the price for family patents was reduced to $11 from $12 a barrel, while at another mill a decline of 35 cents went into effect, its quotation being $10.85 a barrel.

MOTHER SHOTS TEACHER.

Chicago Woman Resents Reprimand Administered To Her Son.

The shooting occurred after Mrs. Rindoni had called at the McLaren school to interview her. There was a short argument and Mrs. Rindoni pulled a revolver from her skirt and fired twice. She escaped. The teacher will recover.

AMERICAN CITIZEN MURDERED AT CANANAE, MEXICO.

Washington.—The murder of M. Severy, an American citizen, at Cananae, Mexico, was reported to the State Department. Secretary of State Colby has telegraphed to the American Consul at Nogales, in the Mexican State of Sonora, to call on the Mexican authorities "to take all possible measures to apprehend the murderer."

The report of the murder came to the State Department from the American Consul at Nogales, who stated that the murder was reported to have been committed by Raymondo Navarre without provocation. Navarre is a discharged miner, who the Cananae Copper Company had refused to employ, and is still at large. Mexican troops are searching for him, the department was advised.

Severy was a resident of Bisbee, Ariz. A reward has been offered by the copper company.

Washington.—Immediate reorganization of the National Guard is deemed advisable, said an announcement by the War Department.

Rome.—Reports printed in newspapers of this city to the effect that Capt. Gabriele d'Annunzio was involved in a plot intended to overturn the present Italian Government have been denied by Captain d'Annunzio, according to reports from Fiume. He has issued an official statement vigorously protesting against rumors that he is intending to participate in a "coup de main," and adds he has never been "addicted to plots."

BOLSHEVIKI TAKE CHITA.

Seat of Semenov Anti-Soviet Regime Reported Captured.

Vladivostok.—Opponents of the Semenovoff Anti-Bolshevik regime occupied Chita, the capital, and overthrew the temporary assembly, according to a wireless from Chita received here. General Semenov escaped in an airplane, but the Japanese military and diplomatic mission remained behind. The message said the fate of the Japanese representatives remains in doubt.

BABY'S ROMPERS HALT SUIT.

Couple "Make Up" After Shopping For To's Clothes.

Chicago.—After instituting suit for divorce from the father of her 3-year-old son, Mrs. Benjamin Widoff decided that the boy needed new clothes. The husband agreed to purchase them.

The estranged couple decided to let down the bars just once to shop for the rompers. By the time they had finished buying baby's clothes they were on such good terms they decided to forget about the divorce. The suit has been dropped.

ROOT COURT PLAN ADOPTED.

Clauses Giving Obligatory Powers Eliminated.

Brussels.—The so-called Root plan for an international court in connection with the League of Nations, with a few modifications has been adopted by the League council in session here. Leon Bourgeois, president of the council, confirmed the adoption of the plan.

The council agreed to eliminate the clauses in the Root plan which conferred upon the court obligatory powers. The council decides that the League covenant gives the court no authority to call litigants before it against their will.

The seat of the new court will be at The Hague and the body will begin its deliberations next year, Bourgeois said.

CANADA DELAYS ENVOY MATTER.

Dominion Thought Likely To Appoint Minister Next Year.

Washington.—It was learned at the British Embassy that the decision in regard to the appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington rested entirely with the Canadian Government, and that the fact that no appointment had been made was due to circumstances which concerned the Canadian Government alone. It is understood that a Minister may be appointed next year, although nothing definite has been decided.

GOTHAM LANDLORD JOLTED.

Jury, Under New Law, Cuts His 66 Per Cent. Raise To 10.

New York.—The first landlord to face a jury under New York's new rent laws received a jolt when the jury awarded him permission to raise his rent 10 per cent instead of the 66 per cent he had sought to get out of his tenant. "It marks the doom of New York's rent law," said David Shapiro, the landlord, when the verdict was read.

LORD MAYOR OF CORK DEAD

MacSwiney Dies After Hunger Strike of 73 Days

ARRESTED ON AUGUST 12

Mayor Of Cork Succumbed To Hunger Strike And Adds Another Chapter To History Of The Struggle For Irish Freedom.

London.—Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, died at Brixton Prison Sunday morning, following a hunger strike of 73 days.

The Lord Mayor's death occurred at 5:40 A. M. Father Dominic, his private chaplain, and his brother, John MacSwiney, were with him at the time. MacSwiney never gained consciousness.

The story of the self-starvation of Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, probably will become one of the most moving chapters of the centuries-long history of the Irish struggle. No other controversy has stirred Great Britain so deeply as this since the one that centered upon Cecil Rhodes, when the Jameson raid was balked by Paul Kruger and the raiders imprisoned.

The campaign in English for MacSwiney's release from prison has been apart from all political and party considerations and even the King was drawn into it. The movement in MacSwiney's behalf was mainly humanitarian and enlisted tender-hearted people of all factions but was urged by others with arguments of party strategy.

MacSwiney was arrested on August 12 in the city of Cork under the Defense of the Realm Act. Four charges were made against him. They were: 1. That he was on the day of his arrest in possession of the secret numerical cypher code issued to the Royal Irish Constabulary.

2. That he had this secret code under his control.

3. That he had in his possession a resolution passed by the Corporation of Cork acknowledging the authority of and pledging allegiance to the Dail Eireann, a document which was likely to cause disaffection in Ireland.

4. That the speech which he made when he was elected to succeed Lord Mayor MacCurtain, a copy of which was in the hands of the government, contained seditious utterances and was likely to cause disaffection.

FUR FARMING IS URGED.

Success Of Maryland Experiment Cited By Government.

Washington.—"Fur farming" is urged by the Department of Agriculture to provide for the increasing demands in this country.

In one section of Maryland muskrat farming is a well-established industry. The meat is served at one hotel as "marsh rabbit." One hundred thousand to 125,000 skins a year are harvested by Marylanders.

The department finds that silver foxes, black foxes, blue foxes, skunks and muskrats can be farmed with success.

The United States Government through the Bureau of Fisheries takes seal skins on the Pribiloff Islands. Last year, the sealskins numbered 27,821, which were worth nearly $4,000,000. Here are some of the prices that were paid last spring for skins: Weasel, $10; muskrats, $7.50; skunks, $12.25; raccoon, $30; lynx, $66; red fox, $71; mink, $75; otter, $105; marten, $201, and fisher, $365.

LANSING DENIES REPORT.

Washington.—"I have no plans for writing about the peace conference after election day."

This statement was made by Robert Lansing, former Secretary of State and delegate to the Paris conference, when his attention was called to the published report that after election he will write the secrets of the Versailles Treaty.

Washington.—The battleship Oklahoma attached to the Atlantic fleet has been awarded a bronze trophy for excellence in small-arms practice for vessels of the battleship class for the year ending last June 30. Operating conditions in both the Pacific and Asiatic fleets during the year were such that only a very limited amount of small arms practice was conducted, the Navy Department announced and no trophies were awarded in those fleets.

Deus Ex Machina

By FREDERICK HART

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Grand Central—and make it fast! There's an extra dollar in it for you if you get there in 10 minutes!"

Clifford Harlow's voice was strained as he shouted the directions at the driver of the taxi he entered at the Pennsylvania station. He had to get to Boston that afternoon to close a big deal, and he had been two hours late in getting into the Pennsylvania; the Springfield Express left, he knew, in a quarter of an hour. There was an outside chance of his making it, if the taxi driver was up to his work. So he settled back in the cushions and bided his time. Fretting could do no good.

The taxi shot out of the gloom of the tunnelled exit into the busy traffic of Seventh avenue, swung to the north, and selected a comparatively quiet cross-town street in the upper thirties for its cross-town run to Fifth avenue.

As they crossed Sixth avenue Harlow looked at his watch. Twelve minutes to train time! But they would be at the station in five more; a comfortable but not too close margin of safety. The taxi ground to an abrupt halt, and Harlow recovered himself from the floor, whether he had been unceremoniously pitched by the sudden stoppage, and looked out of the window to see the cause of the disturbance.

Immediately in front of his vehicle a huge delivery van, undoubtedly belonging to one of the department stores whose backs lined the street, had attempted to make a short turn. Its driver, miscalculating the distance from curb to curb, had been forced to back, which he did without sufficient preliminary assurance that the street was clear, with the result that the stern of his vast equipage had thrust itself immediately in front of the hurrying taxi.

The driver had made a gallant effort to clear the lumbering obstruction, with the result that a west-bound taxi, also imbued with the same idea, had locked wheels with him and skidded against the curb. The delivery van, finding it impossible to go backward any farther, and further prevented from forward motion, had stopped, and each of the three drivers was busily explaining in the purest Manhattanese just what they thought of the driving skill, mental endowments and immediate ancestry of the other two.

With his mind on his train, Harlow tried to swing open the left hand door of his taxi, to find that the rear of the van blocked his exit. Despairing, he turned to the right hand door, to find himself looking into a pair of indignant blue eyes and hearing a voice that was the direct descendant of the music of the spheres inquiring: "Well, why don't we go ahead?"

Harlow's intention of using bad language instantly died. He raised his hat as well as he could in his cramped quarters and replied: "I'm sure I don't know. We seem to be stuck here forever. And I have to make a train, too."

"But I must be at the McAlpin by 10 o'clock," she said imperiously, as though Harlow's troubles were of small account. "And I don't see why this taxi doesn't go ahead. Driver! Why don't you go on?"

Blue Eyes seemed unsatisfied by the explanation she was given, for the driver was still engaged in his wordy controversy, to the huge delight of the small crowd that had gathered, and seemed to hold out no promise of immediate progress. Harlow came to the rescue.

"Suppose we get out and take another taxi?" he suggested.

"But I can't get out!" The voice was almost fearful. Harlow abandoned all thought of his train, now hopelessly lost, and turned himself to the problem of extricating himself from distress. In a moment he had solved it.

The two taxis were locked firmly together, and it was impossible to open either door, but if one door were removed the other could swing wide enough to permit the exit of a slender person. He opened his door as far as he could—a foot or so—and threw all his weight against it. The old hinges creaked and gave. Another violent push and the door tumbled into the street between the two cabs.

Harlow swung open the door of the other machine and assisted the girl to alight. He was just about to climb out himself when the driver appeared, irate and indignant.

"Hey! Watcha think yer doin'?" howled he. "Watcha wanna bust that door fer? Who's gonna pay fer it, I'd like ter know?"

"I'll pay for it," interposed Harlow. "My name is Clifford Harlow, and I am traveling for the Henderson Iron Works in Cleveland. I—" but he got no further.

"I dunno you from Adam!" shrieked the driver. "I'm gonna call a cop, I am. You can't get away with nothin' like that in N'Yawk—see?"

Harlow felt a sinking sensation. He had helped heavily in distress, it was true—but at what a cost! He would have to go to the police station; his trip would be lost; he knew he did not have enough money with him to buy a new door, and would be reduced to wiring the firm for more. It might cost him his job. He turned slightly pale. The driver looked adamant. What could he do?

But a cool little voice interposed itself into the dispute.

"Driver!" It said sharply. The taxi-bandit turned. The girl from the other car was standing beside the two men.

"Driver, you will not take this man to the police station, or anything else. I happen to know him personally; he will make good any damage you may have sustained. Here is my card." She handed the slip of cardboard to the taxi driver, whose truculence was instantly translated into reverence.

"Oh, all right, if you say so, Miss Van Venter. I didn't know de gent was a friend o' yours. If you say it's all right, w'y, dat goes, see? It's all right, mister—I'll let yer know wot de damages is. It's all right." He took off his cap. "Lemme git you anudder cab—hey—taxi!"

A passing vehicle swung cautiously up to the jam. The driver of the wrecked car addressed its Jehu.

"Take dese people to—were did yer want to go, lady?"

"McAlpin hotel—and hurry!" Clifford Harlow spoke before the girl could answer. She turned to him. "But you'll miss your train!" she cried.

"My train's already missed," replied Harlow, with a grin. "But you seemed to have an important engagement, so let him take you along. I'll manage somehow."

"Indeed you won't! Just come in here with me!" Her manner was imperious, and Harlow obeyed. The driver, backing and turning, sped on his way to the hotel. Harlow spoke: "How can I ever thank you enough? I don't know what I should have done without your assistance. If you hadn't told the driver you knew me—"

She blushed. "Of course I didn't know you—but after you were so kind—and so strong—I couldn't leave you to his tender mercies."

"Here we are." The taxi drew up at the curb. Harlow rose to help the girl out. She hesitated.

"If you've missed your train," she began, "won't you lunch with me? I didn't really have an engagement—I just wanted the driver to hurry."

"Will it?" exclaimed Harlow joyously. "Will a duck swim?"

And so they had lunch together. And so they became acquainted. And so, but why state the obvious? "It was fate," said Harlow to his bride as they spun away from the church one afternoon a year later. "Sheer fate."

"Yes, dearest—but a funny kind of fate, in motor cap and goggles."

"Oh, I think that is the correct dress for the god from the machine," replied her husband.

And his smiling bride did not contradict him.

Action Spoke Louder Than Words.

Daniel O'Connell, the immortal Irish orator, once proved to a friend that it isn't what you say, but how you say it, that counts. Leading his friend to the fish market, he picked out a hard-boiled fishwife and addressed her somewhat like this: "You exquisite, pulchritudinous, impeccable morsel of ethereal saccharinity, I intend to disseminate to the ultimate ends of creation your incomparably admirable mental and physical attributes." But he scowled, shook a menacing finger under her nose and spoke in a tone of thunderous accusation, so the fishwife, thinking she was being viciously insulted, fairly leaped about in search of "some blunt instrument" with which to bash the head of the man she thought had insulted her.

Relation of Patient and Doctor.

The relations between a doctor and his patient are absolutely confidential and are safeguarded by law, which forbids a physician from testifying to what he has learned in treating the patient, unless the latter expressly waives his right to secrecy. If, however, a patient has employed several doctors, and has at a trial called some of these to testify to his condition as the result of an injury, the other side has a right to call other doctors, as the calling of some of the physicians by the plaintiff is a waiver of his rights.

Silence That Terrifies.

Some years ago Mr. Galton, the famous anthropologist, invented and constructed a whistle which, by means of an adjustable plug, could be rendered so shrill that presently it ceased to be heard by human ears. But—here is the curious part of it—after the sound of the whistle had ceased to be audible to any human ear, a dog was still able to hear it, and came readily when it was blown.

though it were one of these modern up-to-second affairs, it would keep the best time in the world."

At any rate the works—which are said to be of wood, though Mr. Westland has never had occasion to open the big painted face and examine them—have marked off the hours for hundreds of services without a murmur.

Two buildings have preceded the present church edifice. The first, erected in 1708 through the efforts of Philip Embury, was outgrown in time; the second was found by a city ruling to be out of the building line, and the present edifice, while comparatively modern, retains the appearance of age by its dignified, unpretentious interior and the simple lines of pillars and galleries.

In the downstairs meeting room are the plain, strongly built wooden desk and altar rail in daily use—the handiwork of the pioneer hands of Philip Embury. In this room no noisy meetings are conducted, not by the church, but by the business men's meeting group, composed of business men and women in the vicinity.

Typical Styles in Coats

IT IS really something in the nature of a relief to find in coats an absence of the over-elaboration which characterizes gowns, blouses and some suits. Coats are sufficiently decorated, and it is only by comparison that they seem simple. Measured by the standards set by other apparel, they practice much reserve in the matter of adornment. This does not apply to those gorgeous affairs in evening coats that revel in embroideries and other decorations, but to the practical garments for street wear that are the daily companions of many women throughout the winter.

To the coats that made their initial success last year, the bolivias, velours and duvetyns, similar weaves have been added, and, along with these, some handsome long-napped weaves. Besides, there are some new and beautiful wool-fur fabrics that make very rich coats, and the usual coatings are represented; but velvety duvetyns and wool velours are the favorites. Embroidery is the almost universal embellishment on coats made of these materials. The rich surfaces of the popular clothes and the vogue for embroideries make the new coats handsome enough for any occasion.

Two representative models are pictured here, each of them having a fur collar and one of them deep fur cuffs. In the coat at the left tan-colored duvetyn is cleverly cut and the plain panel at the back seems to call for the large embroidered motifs which are done in silk matching the cloth. Hudson seal, in collar and cuffs, is the best of furs to choose for it. The dark gray coat of wool velours at the right is a very chic model with bloused back, draped sleeves and rows of covered buttons set over plaits at the shoulders. Its collar of gray squirrel fur is very ample and becoming. It will be noticed that these coats are long, loosely adjusted and have dolmanlike sleeves—all of these points being typical of the season's styles.

The Sweaters of Today

A GOOD many handsome sweaters and sweater coats merely pose as warmth-giving garments and lend a sport flavor to the outdoor outfit of their wearers, who usually sojourn in genial climes. But there are many equally handsome designs in practical, machine-knitted sweaters, like those shown in the picture above, that belong to the substantial class and give a real protection. These are two of the simplest among a number of new models in sweaters and sweater coats.

Models on established lines appear among the new displays, having collars, cuffs, bands or other trimmings made of the heaviest zephyrs, in the form of a pile on a knitted base. These bands are sometimes plain and sometimes figured and are used in colors that contrast with the sweater they trim. Cream white is a favorite and the effect is that of shaggy fur. Speaking of fur, extravagant new models in sweater coats are displayed with collars and cuffs of skunk fur. These sweaters are closely knit and warm, and much enriched by the addition of fur, but the combination of fur and knitted yarn is a little startling.

So far the choice of sweaters does not indicate that garish colors are favored, but there are vivid blues and greens that are liked and occasional pleasant and heretofore models among other lively shades. The two sweaters pictured are made in a variety of colors. They emphasize the outstanding style feature in the sweaters of today: they are shapely and set trimly on the figure. There is nothing "slumpy" about the smart sweater coat shown at the left of the picture, with its snug-fitting, double-breasted body, or in the pretty slip-over model which hugs the figure about the shoulders and bust. It is gathered in at the waist with a knitted cord. Both sweaters have long sleeves—the slip-over adopting the bell model and relying on cord to hold it close to the arm.

Paris Tam Crazy.

According to the latest millinery advice, Paris has gone quite tam crazy—and tams of all types in a wide variety of materials, and a large proportion of them in bright colors have already found their way here.

Feather Fans.

Ostrich feather fans made of beautifully-shaded feathers of one color are a novelty of the moment, and fans made of a combination of ostrich and pheasant feathers are a close second in favor.

THE UNIVERSE CAR

Insist on Genuine Ford Parts

Imitation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail-order houses, down-town stores and garages to unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. But they are not Genuine Ford parts. They are made by concerns who have no connection whatsoever with the Ford Motor Company. Tests have shown them to break when the genuine Ford parts didn't even bend.

The Authorized Ford Dealers are your protection. As such, we handle nothing but the Genuine Ford parts. They are made from the famous Ford Vanadium Steel, and each part—according to its use—is heat-treated in the way that will give it the longest wearing qualities.

Our Ford garage and Ford mechanics are at your service at all times. Drive in when replacements or repairs for your Ford car may be necessary. Save your car and also your money.

Grip

Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason when grip is prevalent you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.

MAKING MONEY

Some men make their money in business—some in stocks—some by toilsome saving of their daily wages. But we submit to you the unquestioned fact that more men have achieved a comfortable competence through the ownership of property—houses and land which bring in a fixed income—than in any other way.

A word to the wise is enough. Watch your neighbors gradually rise in the world and then ascertain how they are doing it.

In nine cases out of ten you will find they have purchased their home or farm—often on easy terms—while their less enterprising neighbor is still paying rent.

A word to the wise is sufficient. If you have not yet started on a place of your own do not delay. Get full particulars about some of the following properties.

Financial Loss Due to Colds

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.

UNSEASONABLE WEATHER MEANS Bargains For Buyers

THIS linen duster weather at a time when our overcoat trade should be booming, is enough to slow up the sales of the most energetic merchant. But moving goods on is the life of our business, and to keep our oft repeated motto good, "No goods over the season," we must stimulate these sales grown slack by reason of such unusual weather.

However we take pleasure in reflecting that as a result of these weather reductions our valued patrons will reap some rare bargains. We give below a few illustrations.

Money deposited in the bank is alive. It

The only kind of money that grows is live money.

Inexpensive Perfection in Farm Buildings

Practical experience, no less than scientific test, has definitely settled the fact that the wooden house is dryer and warmer than one built of any other material. It is therefore more healthful and more comfortable. This is just as true of the barns which shelter your stock as of the house which shelters your family.

We can show you a wood-North Carolina Pine—with which you can build your home, barn, shed, silo, etc., at low cost and with every assurance of complete satisfaction.

If you are interested in up-to-date farm buildings we can get for you free an excellent book which ordinarily retails for $1.00.
It contains plans, elevations and details of practically every kind of farm building.

The Price of the Nash Six is $1695 with Cord Tires f. o. b. Kenosha

We emphasize the price, $1695, because it is very low.

We have created in this car an actual and exceptional value which we know justifies this statement:

The Nash Six is a better value than any other car selling near it in price and equal to many costing hundreds of dollars more.

Determine this for yourself.

Compare the Nash Six with other cars; compare the power of its perfected valve-in-head motor, its roominess and comfort, and the really exceptional beauty of its design and finish.

And then compare its cost.
